

When I said, "Let's go see the stars," I meant it.

In high school I was a romantic—and I still am. Faraway places have always filled me with wonder.

That's why I chose a career that takes me to our planet's most inhospitable climates. I get to mountaineer my way to new discoveries. My research on Arctic glaciers has revealed how our world is warming like never before. My name is Cameron Wake, and I'm a concerned scientist.
